DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claim 7 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fujinami (5,502,573).

Regarding claim 7, Fujinami discloses a multimedia information communication method for dissolving a multiplexed coded bit stream into video data and audio data, the video data having attached thereto an error correction character produced at an encoding end in accordance with a predetermined error correction calculation, and for decoding the video data and the audio data, comprising steps of: receiving the coded bit stream and dissolving the same into video data and audio data so as to subject the video data to the predetermined error correction calculation (fig.4A, note data stream is received and separated by element 21A of the demultiplexer 5A into audio and video components); comparing a result of calculation with the error correction character attached to the video data, and adding error information based on a result of comparison to the video data (fig.4A, note error correction is calculated at element 3 and the results are sent to element 28A, and then compared to the attached video data at element 21A); and decoding the video data by referring to the error information attached to the video data (fig.4B, note in fig.4A, after video data exits from element 21A, the demultiplexed video data stream is eventually decoded at element 7).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-6 are allowed.

The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The prior art does not specifically disclose the combination of limitations as presented in claim 1: A multimedia information communication apparatus for dissolving, at a data demultiplexing, a multiplexed coded bit stream into video data and audio data, the video data having attached thereto an error correction character produced at an encoding end in accordance with a predetermined error correction calculation, and for decoding the video data and the audio data by outputting the video data to a video decoder and outputting the audio data to an audio decoder, wherein said media demultiplexer comprises: demultiplexing means for dissolving the coded bit stream into the video data and the audio data; error correction character generating means for receiving the video data from said demultiplexing means and subjecting the same to the predetermined error correction calculation; error information adding unit for comparing a result of calculation by said error correction character generating means with the error correction character attached to the video data, and for attaching error information based on a result of comparison to the video data, and wherein said video decoder decodes the video data by referring to the error information attached to the video data by said error information adding unit.
